

Morgan to promote new album

Will be performing in Galena on New Year's before stint in Dickeyville

Five albums and a busy performance schedule - who may this describe? Some Grammy-nominated singer signed to a big label?

No, that description describes Grant County resident Rosalie Morgan, who operates her own recording studio, prints and sells her own CDs, and who will be performing pieces from her new album, Songs of Comfort and Inspiration, at Schultzie's in Dickeyville throughout January.

Self-described as a singer of inspirational and easy listening, Morgan has been writing songs since she was 11, and estimates she has penned more than 100 unique tunes. Motivated at a young age to release a song that would make the charts, Morgan put out her first album in 1996 and created her own label in the process.

Her and her husband, Jim, built their own studio for reording, and expanded their services, from creating and revising jingles to providing telephone musical hold packages.

Yet the pull was always there for singing. Morgan will be performing at The Grape Escape in downtown Galena on New Year's Eve, wrapping up a year that saw her performing 63 times across the tri-states. Not wanting to rest, Morgan will be in Dickeyville performing through the month of January.
